Request for Emeritus Status

Yale University Faculty Handbook, Section XIX.A. – Full Retirement and Emeriti Titles

Retired members of the faculty who continue to be professionally active contribute a great deal to the University community. The Emeriti titles are granted by vote of the Corporation to members of the teaching faculty in certain ranks when they retire or resign from Yale, provided that they meet specified criteria for age and length of service. The ranks eligible for Emeriti status are: tenured faculty in all schools; professors in the practice in all schools; professors in the investigator, clinician-scholar, and clinician-educator ranks in the School of Medicine...To be eligible, a faculty member must have reached age 55, held full-time appointments in the eligible rank(s) for at least ten years, and the combination of age plus eligible years in rank must equal at least 75. Nominations for Emeriti status shall be submitted by a faculty member's Dean to the Office of the Provost by the final semester of the individual's non-retired status. Emeriti titles do not confer any academic appointment. They designate honorific status to which Yale attaches certain non-monetary administrative privileges, and the title may be withdrawn by the Corporation upon recommendation of the President or Provost.
