The Adler Geriatric Center is an outpatient consultative service that provides comprehensive assessment of older people. The Center works with people who have medical, cognitive, or social problems impeding function or threatening independent living. Patients with memory loss or dementia, loss of self-care skills, or suffering loss of mobility or with difficulty walking or falling, can be assessed in this Center.

Senior Assessment Center

2080 Whitney Ave., Suite 150
Hamden, CT 06518
203-789-3275

Medical and age-related conditions can cause difficulty for older adults to perform basic daily living activities. Our Senior Assessment Center can help by providing a comprehensive physical, medical, psychosocial and functional assessment to diagnose difficulties and medical conditions. Our geriatric medical providers can establish a plan of care to promote better mental, physical, and social function for the elder person and assist the family with information and referral to community agencies and resources.

Developmental Disabilities

Adults with developmental disabilities are at increased risk for cognitive impairment. Specialized testing is available to determine if cognitive decline is due to normal aging or signifies cognitive decline.
